

Delivering Improved Customer Service – A Practical Approach

Outline

More organisations than ever are focussing on improving their customer service and satisfaction levels. These organisations are rightly reviewing their systems and procedures and involving tenants in their decision making processes. This workshop aims to complement these activities by examining customer service at the delivery end of social housing provision. What are the customer service issues being faced by housing association staff and their contractor partners, and how can it be improved without blowing the budget?

Aim

The workshop aims to raise awareness of the need for improved customer service and specifically:

- Produce a definition for customer satisfaction which reflects existing cost, quality, delivery and Health & Safety drivers
- Identify what good customer service means to tenants, RSLs and contractors
- Provide a framework for managing conflicting demands in delivering excellent customer service

Event Details

Location:- Optic Technium,
Ffordd William
Morgan,
St Asaph Business Park,
Denbighshire LL17 0JD
Tel:- 01745 535100

Date:- 15th September, 2010
Time:- 8:00am for bacon rolls,
8:15am prompt start 10:30am finish

Workshop costs

The workshops are being funded by the Federation of Master Builders and Construction Skills and, as such, are free to RSLs and all attending organisations.

More information

Contact:- Andrew McElwee
E-mail: andrew@6ixconsulting.co.uk
Tel:- 07962 992972